Hungary weddings

Prime Minister Viktor Orban's family support caused a boom in weddings in recent years. But now, the situation on the wedding market in Hungary is changing. With 16.4%, Hungary had the highest inflation in the EU, which caused prices of many things to go up dramatically. Many couples said that they exceeded the wedding budget several times, and often they had to look for cheaper things than they wanted to have. Also, the number of guests at a wedding went down. Twenty years ago, it was usual to have 100 to 120 guests at a wedding, but these days, the average wedding has 60 guests.

Apple opens a store in India

Apple CEO Tim Cook opened the company's first retail store in India, which is located in the financial center of Mumbai. It took years of planning and it was necessary to meet regulatory demands. For example, India said that Apple had to use local sources for production. Apple wants to increase sales growth in India, which has a population of 1.4 billion people. The company wants to focus on other countries, not only China. In the year ending March, Apple's sales in India hit almost 6 billion dollars. Global demand for technologies is slowing down, and Apple sees India's growing middle class as a great opportunity. Therefore, it wants to increase production in the country.

French baguette gets UNESCO status

Last week, UNESCO added the French baguette to the list of cultural heritage.

France makes around 16 million baguettes every day, but the number of traditional French bakeries is dropping. Every year, around 400 bakeries close, and the French government hopes that with the new status, the baguette will become popular again. The government plans to create a baguette day to make the French proud of their traditional product. French president Emmanuel Macron visited the French Embassy in the United States last week. He was very excited about the news, and he said that the French baguette was more than just a piece of bread. Macron said that the baguette represented the bakers and the future for French children.

Train at Your Door

A train station close to your home would be for most commuters a nice thing. In Hanoi though, things got a little bit too close. In the Vietnam capital city, there is a street where trains pass right in front of people's doors. Only centimeters separate the train and the houses. The train goes through the narrow street every day at 4 pm and at 7 pm. Residents usually hide because there have been accidents in the past. Living there cannot be very nice, mainly because of the noise and also for security reasons.

Cult members die

Kenyan police found several bodies of cult members at a farm which belonged to the church's leader. Officials said that the bodies belonged to a cult called the Good News International Church whose leader, Makenzie Nthenge, told his followers to starve themselves to 'meet Jesus'. Last week, police launched an operation after they got information about shallow graves on Nthenge's farm in the east of the country. Police found 47 bodies but the search continues not only for more bodies but also for survivors of the cult. Search teams wearing white overalls and masks are continuing to dig at the site. Officials believe that some survivors ran away to a nearby forest.

Black water in a fountain

On April 1, activists from the Last Generation group poured a black liquid into a fountain in Rome, Italy. Pietro Bernini designed the Barcaccia fountain in 1629. The fountain is at the base of the Spanish Steps in central Rome, and it is one of the most visited sites in Rome. Three men and one woman stepped into the fountain and opened bags with a black powder, which turned the water black. The police arrested the people and put them into custody. The group wrote on social media that such a gesture shocked people, but they didn't care that the world was experiencing a drought emergency. The activists wanted to make people notice that global warming is impacting water supply and sea levels, and that world leaders don't do enough to solve this problem.

TESTO N. 36

UK public alert system

On Sunday 23rd April at 3 pm, millions of mobile phones in the UK will make a loud sound and vibrate as part of a test for a new public alert system which the government created.

The purpose of this system is to be used in emergencies like floods and wildfires. The sound will be similar to a normal incoming call, but it will last for 10 seconds and will sound like a siren. Only people with 4G and 5G mobile phones will receive the message, sound, and vibration. The timing of this test happens during important events like the London marathon and two Premier League football matches. Some people worry that the alert could distract drivers and also reveal the location of secret phones which some people at risk use to protect themselves.

France protests after presidential election

French president Emanuel Macron won over his rival Marie Le Pen, and he became the first leader to be re-elected after 20 years. Macron earned 58.5% of Sunday's vote, but a very large number of people didn't vote, since they were unhappy with both candidates. The number was the highest since 1969 for people who didn't win. If Macron didn't win, he would be in a very difficult situation with his party. After people saw the results, protests started in the cities of Paris and Lyon. Le Pen's supporters fought with police, who fired tear gas at them. Macron's supporters celebrated at the Eiffel Tower, as their candidate would be the president for five more years.
